The young student succeeded in checking the animal, but was thrown to the ground and slightly bruised. He modestly slipped through the crowd and got away before Mess De Haan had an opportunity to these him for his bravery.

By a strange coincidence, the young couple were introduced at an evening company in West Philadelphia less than a week afterwards. They fell in love with each other from the start, and soon after Doctor Enditts graduated from the dental department of the University of Pennsylvania asst June, the engagement was privately anneunced. In the fall, Doctor Enditts for Paris to arange his practice and prepare a home for his bride, but returned to America on Saturday.

Doctor Enditts graduated from the Condorcet Lycee of Paris, in 186, when he was 18 years old, and immediately afterwards began the study of dentistry. His course was interrupted in 186, when, owing to the French law, he was compelled to serve in the standing army for the next three years.
